From the Pew Internet & American Life Project

www.pewinternet.org

- “Internet penetration has now reached 73% for all American adults. Internet users note big improvements in their ability to shop and the way they pursue hobbies and personal interests online ...”
- “The share of online Americans who say the internet has greatly improved their ability to shop has doubled—from 16% to 32%—since March 2001.”
- “Equal shares of men and women note the positive effects of the internet in commerce ...”
- “For shopping, younger users are more likely to report big improvements overall, but older users report more growth over time.”
- “The Web has become the ‘new normal’ in the American way of life; those who don’t go online constitute an ever-shrinking minority. And as the online population has grown rapidly, its composition has changed rapidly. At the infant stage, the internet’s user population was dominated by young, white men who had high incomes and plenty of education. As it passed into its childhood years in 1999 and 2000, the population went mainstream; women reached parity with men online, lots more minority families joined the party, and more people with modest levels of income and education came online.”
